

Overall DIVE Score: 63/100

The Good Scan: Platinum Rangehood Installations

Welcome to the review, grab a seat. You guys are doing great. Your real-world foundation is rock solid, and your reputation as premium Perth installers is exactly where it needs to be. This overall score of 63 out of 100 just gives us a simple, objective baseline for a quick tidy-up. We'll run through what you've built, point out a few easy fixes, and show you how to knock off early while the system handles the boring stuff.

What you’re doing right

We actually researched you, we know how hard it is to get Qasair and Schweigen endorsements, and we respect your hustle. Here are three core anchors keeping your business strong.

Core Anchor One

Masterful manufacturer networking. You completely bypass the Google search rat race because premium brands like Schweigen, Sirius, and Qasair already list you as their trusted Perth guys.

Core Anchor Two

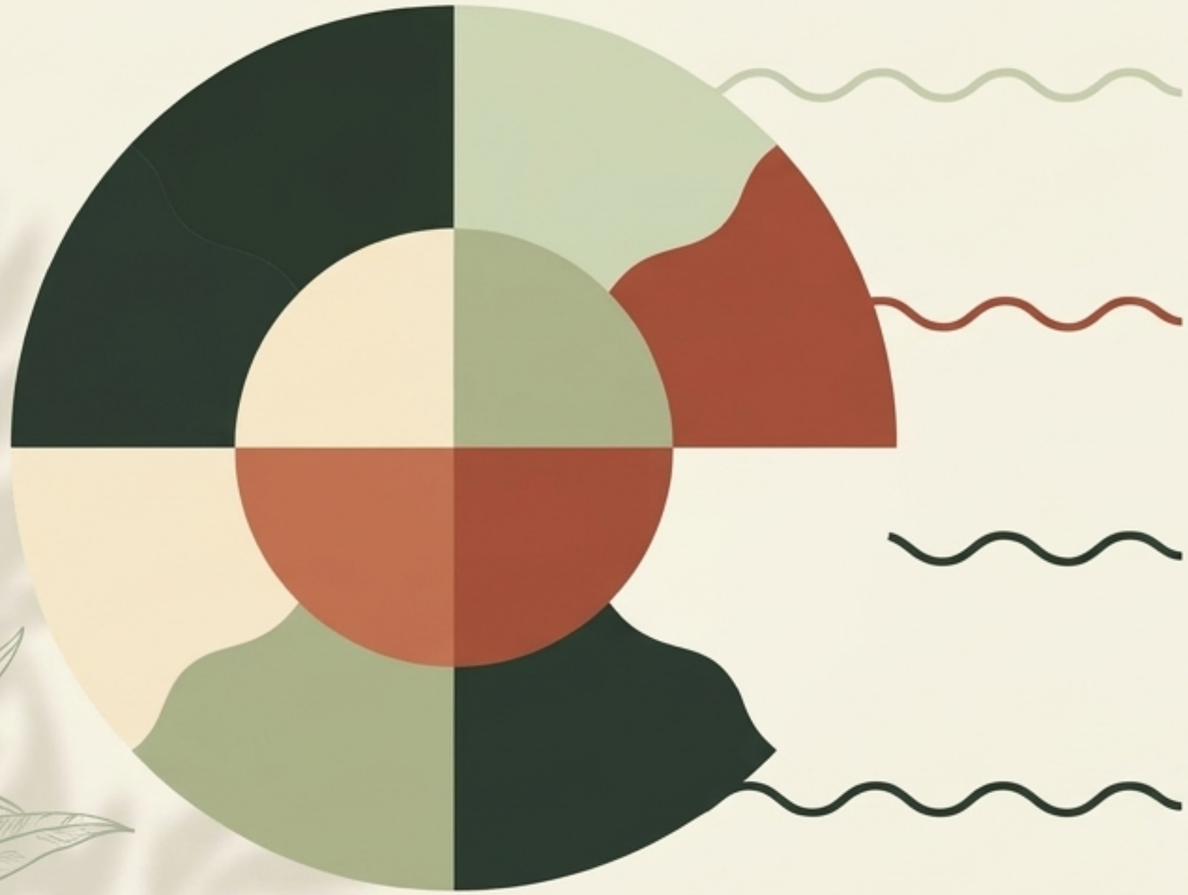

Frictionless mobile contact. Having Rob and Cynan's mobile numbers front and centre on the site is brilliant. You know your customers are on their phones, and you give them zero barriers to reaching you.

Core Anchor Three

Stable, quiet hosting. Running a simple Weebly setup means you aren't constantly fighting server crashes or hacker updates. It just sits there and works while you stay on the tools.

The DIVE scorecard overview

Here is a plain-English breakdown of your digital foundation. It is just the facts, clear and simple.

Defence — 44. How well your site protects your leads and keeps the spam out.

Identity — 79. How clearly you match your elite real-world reputation online.

Visibility — 71. How easily local Perth customers find you when they are ready to book.

Experience — 55. How smooth the journey is from landing on your site to sending you photos of their kitchen.

Protecting the foundation

What’s working.

Your simple Weebly setup is highly secure by default. You aren’t wasting time patching messy code or dealing with complex databases, which which keeps your exposure incredibly low.

The blind spot.

Because you email high-value invoices to builders and homeowners, your domain needs basic anti-spoofing protection so scammers can’t pretend to be you. Plus, your contact form is collecting customer data without a basic privacy statement.

How to tidy it up.

We just chuck a plain-English privacy policy in the footer of your site and flip a few switches with your domain registrar. It takes five minutes and keeps your business emails trusted.

Matching your reputation

What's working.

Your reputation with premium appliance manufacturers is elite. The fact that Elica and Condari trust you to handle their heavy-duty canopies proves you have the skills and the licensing.

The blind spot.

The Australian domain registry and consumer protection groups expect to see your ABN on your website. Right now, it is completely missing, which makes your corporate identity look a bit like a ghost online.

How to tidy it up.

Grab your ABN — 60 225 639 256 — and drop it right into the bottom of your website next to the contact form. It instantly clears up the compliance stuff so your online presence matches your real-world authority.

Getting found locally

What’s working.

You are absolutely dominating the manufacturer referral pages. Let the massive global brands spend all their money on marketing, while you sit at the bottom of the funnel and catch the highly qualified Perth leads.

The blind spot.

Your website doesn't explicitly tell search engines where you are based in Western Australia. Without local suburb data or a verified map pin, you are invisible to homeowners searching for a local installer in their own neighbourhood.

How to tidy it up.

Adding a bit of localized Perth and regional suburb data to your site text ensures you show up when someone in Subiaco or Claremont searches on their phone.

Smoothing the journey

What's working.

Putting 0413 440 529 right there on the homepage is the best thing you could do. Customers with a brand new rangehood sitting in a box just want to talk to a human, and you make that incredibly easy.

The blind spot.

The 'About' link in your menu goes straight to a dead page, which causes a bit of friction for folks trying to check your history.

More importantly, manual photo-chasing is a nightmare. It takes way too much of your evening trying to get customers to text you the right photos of their cooktop and roofline.

How to tidy it up.

Unlink the broken page today. Then, we set up a smart SMS workflow that automatically asks the customer for the three specific photos you need before you even call them back.

Three easy wins to start

You can literally do this on your phone while parked in the driveway.

Takes 2 minutes.

Drop your ABN and registered trading name into the footer of your Weebly site so the registry leaves you alone.

Takes 5 minutes.

Go into your website menu and completely hide or delete the broken ‘About’ link so nobody lands on a dead page again.

Takes 10 minutes.

Add short captions under your gallery photos like ‘Custom Schweigen roof penetration in Cottesloe’ so homeowners know exactly what they are looking at.

The roadmap

No pressure, just a smart way to reclaim your weekends.
We've got your back when you're ready.

This week.

Take fifteen minutes and sort out the free, easy wins on your website to get your compliance and trust markers back in the green.

This month.

Let's install an automated voice receptionist and a smart SMS enquiry workflow.

When you are up a ladder and miss a call, the system answers, asks the right questions, and texts you the customer's roof and cabinet photos.

It is a flat $2,000 setup to stop the endless phone tag.

When you're ready.

We can look at connecting your new enquiry system directly into your quoting software and accounting tools so the boring admin handles itself.

Knock off early, spend time with the kids — we'll sort the rest.
